DARREN J. BEATTIE \n\nDear Revolver Readers,\n\nOver the past four and a ha f years t has been one of the greatest honors of my life to pour my b ood sweat and tears into mak ng Revo ver News the news website that a ways thought Amer can patriots deserved. I th nk it is now more than fair to say that pound for pound Revolver stands as the most cutting-edge, influent al, and fearless vo ce for Amer cans who want to learn the truth Our orig nal reporting and perspectives have reshaped and corrected the nat onal narrative on many important matters, ncluding, and princ pally, the politica weaponization of the nat ona security bureaucracies aga nst Trump supporters and American patr ots of a l str pes We are, of course best known for directly chal enging the offic a narrative of January 6 and we are especia ly proud that President Trump, who recently and heroica y pardoned the January 6 politica prisoners, has himself cited our report ng on this issue frequently and favorably \n\nOur journal stic efforts have earned the pra se not only of Pres dent Trump himself but also ust about every prom nent and fear ess figure n the Amer ca First, MAGA wor d What I am most proud of, however, s the hundreds of m llions of patr ots who have done us the great honor of vis t ng our news page and trust ng us to give them the truth am eterna ly grateful to you, readers, for st cking by us even as some of the most ruthless and we funded political operatives on the planet tr ed to bury us The sad truth s the reg me wanted to prevent the Amer can peop e from knowing the truth of things \n\nNow, thanks to Pres dent Trump's miraculous victory, we have entered the beg nning of a new Golden Age of success, prosper ty, legit macy and accountabi ty I have been given the great honor of serving once again n Trump's adm nistration, th s time in the Department of State Help ng Secretary Rub o and my esteemed colleagues in the State Department fu fi President Trump's agenda wil requ re every ounce of my focus and energy and accordingly, I wil for the t me being suspend my d rect editoria involvement in Revolver News want to reassure my beloved readers that Revolver remains in good hands and that the exceptiona ly talented team that remains s the same team that has been on board since day one and has been indispensab e to our success. Rest assured, Revo ver will cont nue to provide the fearless, cutting-edge Amer ca First report ng that our readers expect and deserve \n\nAt the risk of redundancy, I wou d l ke to end this message by once aga n thanking our readers for oining us on this tremendous ourney and for fighting alongside us even as some of the most powerfu forces n the world were trying to shut us up and shut us down With our readers and our Revolver News family, we have changed the wor d But without you, we are nothing want you to know that we know that and that we are grateful for each and every one of you \n\n hope that you will stay with us on th s ourney as we enter a new Golden Age for our country under Pres dent Trump's leadersh p This great country and Revolver News a ke have unfin shed bus ness The best s yet to come \n\nWith

But the thing is, what Trump has done is not a bill, and it does not commit an attainder. Bills are passed by legislatures and establish general practices that apply to all (or any way they are supposed to do so). Executive actions, which is what Trump has done, give direction for the execution of the law.\n\nA bill of attainder is a bad practice of legislatures. They make judgments about particular people and impose penalties that take property or liberty. Andy is right that they are forbidden in our Constitution -- twice. In both cases, they are forbidden to the Congress, because only the Congress can commit them.\n\nWhat Trump has done is command the executive branch not to do business with a certain law firm. The president is fully empowered to select vendors to the executive branch. He has said members of that firm cannot go into federal buildings. The president controls those buildings. He has said they may not have security clearances. He has the power to grant and withhold them. He has called for the firm to be investigated for DEI -- in particular that they have violated the Civil Rights Act that forbids discrimination on ground of race and sex. He may launch such investigations. If the agents of the president can make a case for these violations, they must go before an independent judge to seek penalties.\n\nIn other words, Trump has taken nothing from the law firm to which it or anyone has a right. The president's job is to \"take care that the laws be faithfully executed.\" He uses contracts, buildings, and security clearances to do that. If we do not like the way he does that, we can elect someone else, if you think everyone has a right to go into government buildings, see if you can just wander in any time. If you think you have a right to a security clearance, try to walk out of one of those buildings with a classified file. Access to public assets should be as open as possible, but of course they cannot be fully open.\n\nIn his order, Trump called the law firm a dirty dog. If they think they are libeled, they know the way to the court house. They go there all the time to hamper Trump and anybody like him.","possibly_sensitive":false,"public_metrics":{"retweet_count":627,"reply_count":145,"like_count":1855,"quote_count":48,"bookmark_count":96,"impression_count":121295},"referenced_tweets":[{"type":"quoted","id":"1900860388918415545"}],"reply_settings":"everyone","text":"The usually insightful @AndrewCMcCarthy has me confused with his piece on @realDonaldTrump's Executive Order, \"Addressing Risks from Perkins Coie LLP.\" He calls it a bill of attainder. There isn't any law mandating it - that's just the way it is. The population remains in the majority Christian, with the share of Americans who identify as Christian outweighing those who identify as Republicans or Democrats," wrote Kevin Williamson recently.\n\nToo many critics of "Christian nationalism" are bothered by this historical and present-day fact - and they show it in their expressed resentment toward the majority of the American people.\n\nI am not, and thus do not share that resentment - see the role of Christianity as critical and fundamental in shaping the American people and, thus, the nation. I have criticized the concept (as much as it is understood) and project (as much as it is coordinated) of "Christian nationalism" on other grounds, mostly political and structural. We need more serious talk about short-term political feasibility and development of long-term civilizational goals. Too few people are involved in these discussions. We are seeking more.\n\nThese misgivings about "Christian nationalism" do not make me reject Christianity or resent Christians, including those who call themselves "Christian nationalists." Neither do they make me intellectually dishonest in my interpretation of American history or the American charter in a way that would distort its framers' intent.\n\nJust as there will be a people who "just are," there will be a civil religion that "just is." And it will shape the people - the Americans - of our future. We've seen how people shaped by a "purely secular" (i.e., anti-Christian) system or by many pagan societies, ultimately fare. We know we don't like the results. I wish to protect Christianity, in a broad sense and religious practice, as that cultural agent upholding the American way of life - shaping its people not only by the laws of the state, but by the laws of the heart, which are stronger than any earthly authority."},"possibly_sensitive":false,"public_metrics":{"retweet_count":0,"reply_count":1,"like_count":4,"quote_count":0,"bookmark_count":0,"impression_count":65},"reply_settings":"everyone","text":"The United States is a Christian nation in the same sense it is an English-speaking nation.
